A creditor need not separately disclose multiple security interests that it may hold in the same collateral. The creditor need only disclose that the transaction is secured by the collateral, even when security interests from prior transactions remain of record and a new security interest is taken in connection with the transaction. 08/04/2021 · A charging order means that if you sell your property, you must pay your creditor back what you owe them out of the proceeds. In some cases, a creditor can force you to sell your property so they can get their money back. For more information about what happens when a creditor applies for a charging order against your property, see Charging orders. A secured transaction is a loan or purchase that is secured by collateral.It involves a borrower or buyer, technically known as the debtor, and a lender or seller, technically known as a creditor, and more specifically known as a secured party.Common secured transactions include a bank loaning a business money so the business can buy inventory, or a company selling a business ... Except as otherwise provided in subsection (e), a buyer, other than a secured party, of tangible chattel paper, documents, goods, instruments, or a certificated security takes free of a security interest or agricultural lien if the buyer gives value and receives delivery of the collateral without knowledge of the security interest or agricultural lien and before it is perfected.
